Monthly commentary – April 2022

By Christian Weldingh and Gustaf Tegell

While the tragic war in Europe continues, China is experiencing another outbreak of the coronavirus. The formerly so-called temporary inflation now seems somewhat more permanent. Central banks around the world are signalling that the threat must be combatted with the interest rate weapon. Summing up, this generates somewhat increased volatility globally. However, the Nordic credit market has not been particularly influenced and the fund's performance for the month is very solid.

Sweden's Riksbanken raised its key policy rate just before the end of April and signalled more to come. The pressure is thus on ECB, with Europe experiencing elevated inflation and a weaker euro. Ever-higher base rates result in higher current returns for the fund.

Bonds worth NOK 245 million were traded during the month, mainly buying. The purchases were spread over different risk classes, reflecting the fund's profile. We participated in two issuances, SBAB Bank and Stena Metall. The former issued a hybrid capital bond (AT1) which we found attractive. Stena Metall is a recycling company which came to the market with a green bond at what we believe were good terms. In the secondary market, we would highlight Norlandia. The company is part of the Adolfsen sphere, where we already know Otiga. That issuer exercised a call option after being offered a favourable banking facility.

The trend with alternative financing is somewhat increasing and other issuers have indicated they will use embedded call options of their bond debt. That said, activity seems to be picking up in the primary market, also for high yield corporates. Our search for the right investments for the fund thus continues with optimism.

Through April, the credit curve moved sideways, thus still appearing somewhat flat. We have good capacity in terms of risk and liquidity; the portfolio has a relatively short time to maturity and good liquidity.
